Designing for the Future: Working with the Client of Tomorrow

In a candid and spirited question-and-answer session, Los Angeles-based designer Windsor Smith and VERANDA Editor in Chief Clinton Smith will discuss the clients of tomorrow, including how to reach, market and work with them in unexpected ways. In her role as a design “anthropologist,” Windsor explores her clients’ lifestyles to craft unique living experiences that feel deeply personal. Her mantra that “everyone can live beautifully” includes demystifying the design experience for clients. Through unique and unorthodox methods (including her “Room in a Box” design services), Windsor’s practice has expanded beyond mere design and decoration. In turn, her practice has grown to include Hollywood’s A-List and titans of finance and business. Clinton and Windsor share new insight into how other designers can expand and grow their own businesses to capture the clients of tomorrow.
