With any change, there is opportunity.

Creativity is a constant and unbreakable energy that evolves with changing environments, overcomes adversity, and ultimately forges new paths and forms of expression. As the world now faces a defining moment in our shared history, the enduring force of creativity is once again triumphantly redefining the concept of sanctuary in our homes and communities. More than ever, design is a unifying form of artistry, where standing out does not mean standing alone.

All events are virtual and require registration.
There will be no events on site at ADAC.

Natural Connections
Panel Discussion

Sponsored by ATLANTA HOMES

Our homes and our communities have perhaps never played such a vital role in restoring our sense of calm and order in the world, while also multitasking as the hub of both our personal and professional lives. Atlanta Homes & Lifestyles Style Editor Clinton Smith sits down with Ryan Hughes, Steven Leonard, and Smith Hanes to explore the growing importance of wellness and nature in interiors through the lens of their projects in Serenbe, an agrarian community forty minutes outside of Atlanta. The gentlemen will discuss how current events are inspiring them to create mindful spaces that offer respite from the world without sacrificing their authentic design perspectives.

Design Evolution with Thomas Pheasant Product Introduction

Join award-winning designer Thomas Pheasant and Baker's Director of Marketing Claire Evans for a thought-provoking virtual Q&A. Thomas will lift the curtain on the comprehensive process of designing a furniture collection, drawing upon his storied career and 18-year-history of collaborating with the heritage brand. Both the technical and creative elements will be discussed, including the creation timeline, from the physical and ideological points of inspiration for individual pieces – including shapes and materials – to the final step of staging, photographing, and marketing the finished products. The audience will also be treated to a sneak peek of Thomas' forthcoming collection for McGuire, largely inspired by Japanese nature and connectedness, and have the opportunity to learn about his fascinating travels around the world and the way those experiences and cultures shape collections of the past, present, and future.

The Art of the Table
Keynote Presentation

Sponsored by

For Eric Goujou, the owner of La Tuile à Loup, the beloved ceramics boutique in Paris, setting the table represents much more than merely preparing for a meal. It is an essential part of l'art de vivre, a way of life that celebrates beauty, quality, craftsmanship, and authenticity. With a mission of preserving those crafts which might otherwise disappear, Eric continues the legacy of original made-in-France products by selecting the very best artists and artisans throughout the country with whom to work, approving each and every piece before it comes into the shop. And while the primary focus is on pottery, Eric also sources basketry and table linens to complete the experience for himself and his discerning clientele around the world. Please join Eric and Stacey Bewkes of Quintessence to learn more about these beautiful French ceramics, collecting, curating, and creating memorable moments à table.

The Art of Being Bold Panel Discussion

Sponsored by Atlanta HOME Atlanta
MAGAZINE

New York design darling Sasha Bikoff joins Mary Logan Bikoff, executive editor of Atlanta Magazine's HOME, in a lively discussion about the roots of her bold and daring style. The it-girl designer made a splash with her technicolor nightclub-inspired stairwell at her Kips Bay Decorator Showhouse debut in 2018, and since then has collaborated with Versace, ELLE DECOR at the Plaza Hotel, and now, with Vervain for Fabricut. She tells us how she manages to mesh styles from Memphis to rococo to Space Age chic, breaking all the rules, and pushing the design world ever forward. Her designs bring a much-needed, uplifting hit of brashness and confidence to a time of uncertainty—and an extra dose of pulsing positivity.

Experience Home with Bill Stewart
Keynote Presentation

Sponsored by luxe.
interiors + design

A contemporary icon. A figure of intrigue in Atlanta and far beyond. Bill Stewart, co-principal of Stewart|Mohr Designs, is a designer broadly admired for both his innovative vision and generous spirit. Forty-two years into his lauded career, Bill splits his days between the Georgia capital and the Palm Springs desert, where he’s currently completing his third impressive personal residence. From Buckhead to Palm Beach, Calabasas to the Gulf Coast, Bill’s portfolio runs the gamut of private estates, high-rise condominiums, lakeside getaways, and luxury yachts. Each project is defined not by prevailing trends, not by style prescriptions, not even by Bill’s signature, but by the common thread of constructing experience. In this rare and compelling conversation—Bill’s first public speaking engagement in years—he reveals to Kate Abney, Homes Editor of LUXE Interiors + Design’s Southeast edition, through a look at his many personal homes, how he responds to context, composes numerous moods within a single residence, and retrofits historic properties for modern life.
